By JAMES C. YOUNG.

THE VAMPIRE WITH AN ANGEL'S FACE.

WHEN Catherine of Russia still was a servant in an East Prussian inn, early in the Eighteenth century a girl named Marie appeared and asked for her help. She was a blonde Swede, named Marie, and told a pathetic story of running away with a young man, who had deserted her when their child was born. She had no money, was weak and haggard. Would Catherine take her in?

Catherine sat the girl down to the best dinner she could find, and watched her eat. "You have the face of an angel," she said, and persuaded her master to let the girl stay. Then the Russians captured the town, and Marie and Catherine fell into the hands of officers.

Marie did not fare so well as Catherine. But she exchanged an officer for a prince. It may be said here that Marie's child had not died, for she murdered it. The father, who had become an officer in the czar's service, met her when she was living with the prince and warned her to spare a second child of which the prince was the father. But Marie fell into a lake with the child, and when rescued it was dead.

A few years later Marie appeared in Petrograd. Catherine had become the czarina, and Marie had powerful protectors. The two women met, and knew each other, but it is said that they never mentioned the days at the inn. Instead, Marie set herself to win the attention of Peter the Great. Falling in this, she waited for him when he was walking in a garden, and threw herself into his arms.

Catherine and Marie, the former friends, now crossed swords for Peter's affection. Both were beauties, and writers of that time bear testimony to Marie's "angelic" face. But unfortunately for her that same officer who had warned her, appeared in Petrograd. And about this time Marie became the mother of a third child, said to have been that of Peter. She killed this child and threw it into an old well. A servant told the news of her deed to the officer, who in turn passed it on to the czar.

Peter ordered a great revel held, and piled Marie with wine until her wits were not her own. Then he took her in his arms, before the whole company, and by the mastery of his will made her confess her crimes. Peter was a devil incarnate to whom the murder of a child would have meant little if it had not been his own. He flung Marie from him, and ordered her execution.

When the headsman had severed the vampire's slender neck, Peter picked up the head and kissed the dead lips.

KEYSTONES

week, and we understand that seve-ber that Saturday night, June 3, is the time to be on hand at Mr. Sleppy's home for the regular C.

All Keystoneites should remem-things are coming up for your con-consideration, chief of which will be the election of officers for the com-ing year. There is nothing like co-operation in community build-ing. We all want to see Keystone grow and if every one helps a little the results will more than satisfy. At this meeting we must make arrangements for getting out a one hundred per cent vote on the county school bonds on June 6. We want that new school building and so does a good many other communities. It's up to us to get on the job now.

Mr. O. V. Kinder has disposed of his stock of merchandise and contemplates a trip to his old home in Missouri. Keystone will miss this estimable family and will hope to see them return by the end of the summer.

I. P. Gates has his new bunga-low about ready for the plaster. It will add much to the scenery on Amelia street and should be the first of several in this neigh-berhood.

The Land Company has done a good job of grading on East 216th street and are now busy applying a good coat of oil. We understand grading on Carson will com-mence in about ten days, and by fall there will be a good many homes started in this desirable tract.

Keystone folks are cordially in- vited to be on hand at the Legion boxing and wrestling bouts at Leg- ion Hall in Torrance Friday eve- ning. The boys of the various shops are exhibiting some keen rivalry and their offering of clean sport will be well worth seeing.

Some of the county officials of the road department were looking over Carson street last week and it is hoped to get in an estimate in the July budget for improve- ment of this street.

Mrs. Day reports the sale of several pieces of real estate the past of C. meeting. Many important eral new homes will soon be added to this thriving community. A good many people are showing good judgment in locating in Key- stone. We have an ideal location for rapid development and shrewd buyers are looking us over every day.

The Feisel Brothers are harvest- ing a fine crop of hay and their extensive acreage of beans are com- ing on in fine shape. Their ranch shows what proper planning and hard work will do in the raising of bumper crops.

Nearly every one has a large flock of young chickens growing rapidly into money and there is no doubt but that Keystone will make a good showing in the egg market from now on.

There are two things to be re- membered—the C. of C. meeting at Sleppy's Saturday night and the school bond election on June 6.

Model For Speeches

At a conference of teachers one of his majesty's inspectors was tell- ing the audience the necessity of brevity in speeches. "Make them on the model of a lady's skirt," he suggested—"long enough to cover everything that ought to be covered but short enough to be interesting." —London Opinion.
